Objectives

How leaders foster innovation

Innovation explained

Leaders must learn how to create an organisational climate where others apply innovative thinking to solve problems and develop new products and services.

I'm sad to report that in the past few years, ever since uncertainty became our insistent 21st century companion, leadership has taken a great leap backwards to the familiar territory of command and control.

Margaret Wheatley

How leaders promote creativity

You have to walk it, you have to live it. It can't be an add on. All the standard CSR stuff, handing over a big cheque once a year, it's all well and good, but unless you embed it into your company and culture and it becomes part of what your business is, then nine times out of ten it's lip service. And what's the point of that?

Paul Corcoran

Creativity explained

Creative leadership is a philosophy and an act: it develops and realises innovative ideas through the shared ambition of improving the world through enterprise formation.

Insight into creative thinking

1. Emphasise collaboration
2. Provide time and space
3. Support and buy-in
4. Encourage the flow of ideas
