Lesson Introduction

“Put quite simply, coaching is about helping someone else to learn– without telling them what to do or what to think. The idea is that the person being coached (the ‘coachee’) comes up with all the ideas and decisions.”
(Burrows, Kate)

Leaders and managers need to know when to coach and when to mentor. Employees need managers and leader to help develop them and give them the skills and direct that they need.

In these summary notes, you will learn more about coaching tools and approaches that you can take as the manager and leader.

Psychological safety

WHAT'S THE DIFF? Trust and Psychological Safety

Psychological safety is the belief that your environment is safe for interpersonal risk-taking. It's similar, but slightly different from, trust.

TRUST

Will YOU give others the benefit of the doubt when you take a risk?

"Bob is probably going to freak out if I disagree with him."

PSYCHOLOGICAL SAFETY

Will OTHERS give you the benefit of the doubt when you take a risk?

"My team expects me to speak up. It's how we do things."

SCIENCE FOR WORK

(scienceforwork)

Before you can be a great coach or leader, you need to prepare your employees. You can prepare your employees by working on psychological safety in your workplace.

So what is psychological safety? Psychological safety is defined as, "being able to show and employ one's self without fear of negative consequences of self-image, status or career". In other words, psychological safety means team members feel accepted and respected within their current roles. As stated by (Friday, 2020)

Continues by (Friday, 2020) stating that creating an environment of psychological safety moves the needle in a meaningful way. In addition to the findings from Google, research by Baer and Frese suggests that psychological safety is present in a working environment improves the likelihood that an attempted process/innovation will be successful. It has been found to:

- Improve employee retention
- Employees are more like to harness the power of diverse ideas from their teammates
- Revenue per employee increases
- They're rated twice as effective by executive-level managers.

How to measure psychological safety?

According to (Friday, 2020) make your team more successful, you first need to establish a baseline and measure improvements over time. You might think you have a good feel for your team, but it's surprising what you'll learn when you actually measure for psychological safety.

To measure this, Edmondson asked team members how strongly they agreed or disagreed with these questions:

1. If you make a mistake on this team, it is often held against you?
2. Are members of this team are able to bring up problems and tough issues?
3. Have people on this team sometimes reject others for being different?
4. Is it safe to take a risk on this team?
5. Is it difficult to ask other members of this team for help?
6. Would no one on this team deliberately act in a way that undermines my efforts?
7. When working with members of this team, are my unique skills and talents valued and utilized?

Ways to create psychological safety:

1. Lead by example

Anyone in a position of responsibility should set an example for the rest of the company. This is applicable from senior management, down to team leads, and managers. If done properly, the set of behaviours should become a norm across the company.

- Ask for upward feedback
- Acknowledge your mistakes
- Be open to opinions that differ from your own
- Be approachable and encourage reports to ask questions

2. Encourage active listening

This is an important part of ensuring people feel valued and that they can contribute to the team. Ideas to improve listening include:

- Leave phones at the door during meetings
- Show understanding by repeating what was said
- Encourage people to share more by asking questions
- If certain individuals rarely speak during meetings, actively ask them for their opinion

3. Create a safe environment One of the keys to psychological safety is that people feel comfortable voicing their opinions and do not fear being judged. Help teams develop a safe environment, by creating a few ground rules on how they interact with one another. These could be for example:

- Do not interrupt each other

- All ideas are accepted equally and never judged
- Never place blame
- Out of the box, suggestions are encouraged and listened to

4. Develop an open mindset

In order to break free of judgment and strengthen the relationship between team members, it's important to have an open mindset. Often we look at things from our own lens, but approaching them from a different angle can help bring perspective. In order to develop an open mindset at the workplace:

- Encourage teams to share feedback with one another
- Help them learn how to respond to input from others
- Rather than criticism, encourage teams and individuals to see feedback as a way to strengthen and build upon their ideas and processes.

Coaching models

There are a lot of coaching models that you can make use of when preparing for your coaching session. Below are some examples of different models that you can have a look at. You can use the models in a visual format or use an Excel or Word document to help you when you're preparing.

Meeting templates

Here are great coaching meeting templates to for your next coaching session.

One on One meeting:

- How's life outside of work?
 - What are your top priorities this week?
 - What's one recent win and one recent situation you wish you handled differently?
 - Would you like more or less direction from me?
 - Are there any skills that you'd like to acquire in the short term?
 - How do you find working with the team? What we can do to improve team culture?
- Are our meetings a good use of your time? What can we do to improve them?
 - Do I give you enough feedback?
 - What's something I should consider changing or start doing?
 - What are your long-term professional goals?

Example of a coaching session

There are a lot of free samples and templates that you can make use of when it comes to your coaching session. Below, I have added a few examples to give you a better idea of what you can make use of.

Intake Session Checklist

Client Name: _____ Date: _____

The Intake session helps the coach develop a better understanding of the client needs, their way of working and helps the client understand what coaching is, what to expect and the role of the coach and client.

What	Details	✓	Notes
1. WELCOME CLIENT - Take control of session and explain how the session will go today.
What are the Client's aims from Coaching?	Ask "What do you want to achieve from Coaching? " - Do you have any specific Goal/s or issue/s to resolve/meet? - How will you know when you have achieved those goals? - Review Goals Sheet. If not completed, ask for by next session. "Why seek coaching now?" This 'treasure' is key to moving them forwards.
2. ADMIN
Agreement Signed & Returned?	If not, answer any queries and ask for return before next session.
Coaching Ethics/Conduct?	If you've sent, confirm receipt or remind them where available.
Payment	- Money for first month/session received - Monthly billing process – e-invoice/by mail/phone?
Can I mention you are a client?	Ask and record a Y/N here for your records
Client Information Sheet	Complete Client Information Sheet (if not already)
Admin	Admin/logistics - review key points from Agreement like: - missed and late appointments ⇒ fees - how appointments set up ⇒ who calls who etc - discuss any upcoming vacations/trips on both sides
Set up next appointments	If not already, set next 2-3 appointments.
3. COACHING PROCESS
What Coaching Is/Isn't	- Coaching is about a relationship between the coach and client to create a life/career the client wants. - It holds you accountable to make change, action is absolutely key. - Coaching doesn't necessarily show you anything NEW – usually we know what we need to do! But coaching can give you a very different outlook - to see the world and yourself differently. 100% confidential • Non-judgemental Raising awareness • NOT advice/counselling/therapy
Your Coaching Philosophy	Share your coaching philosophy here if you haven't already.
What Coaching involves - what they should expect...	- How sessions will go/session structure. Change (eg. their goals) is part of the coaching process. Ups & Downs – are normal in coaching – as is reaching a plateau. Note: We need the DOWN cycle for spiritual growth! Gain permission to: - interrupt them ⇒ get tough with them - challenge them/ask difficult questions - repeat back what they have just said - give them forms/exercises/inquiries during/between sessions Client decides what to cover, how/when to end coaching. Coaching Relationship is two-way confidentiality.
Role of Coach - what Client can expect from you	- Set your boundaries here. Eg. returning email and phonecalls within one working day. - Help work out set, clarify and maintain focus on your goals. - Hold you accountable – for what you say you're going to do. - Help you establish your own solutions & strategies. Encourage, support & believe in you! even when you do not! - Raise your self-awareness, CHALLENGE you and help you to recognize where you may be holding yourself back.
Role of Client - what you expect from Client	- To be honest and open (and to tell us when they can't be). Willing to adopt a more positive outlook on self and life. - Ready to be fully accountable for your life/decisions/actions. - Remind them: YOU are responsible for YOUR results. Success is directly related to their commitment and effort made.
How do you want to be Coached?	- Ask "How best can I coach you - what tips can you give me?" - What can you tell me about your learning style?
Any questions?	Are there any outstanding questions about the Coaching process?
4. TODAY'S COACHING
Forms/Homework	"What did you learn about yourself from your homework?"
Client HISTORY	Review Life Map or Tell me a little bit more about yourself?
At least ONE action	Client chooses. Can be incomplete exercise from Welcome Pack.
Feedback/Learning for you	"What is your Biggest Win from the session today?"

Coaching Kick-Off

Coachee: _____

Coaching Focus and Schedule Logistics

1. Have a chat with the teacher about what they'd like to focus on during your coaching. What's going well? What are they struggling with? (consider a focus area that will have a high leverage impact on students)	Coaching Focus:	Notes:
3. Now work out a schedule with the teacher. Decide on a good time that will work for you to visit, and when you'll meet to debrief and/or plan.	<table border="1"> <tr> <td>M</td> <td>T</td> <td>W</td> <td>T</td> <td>F</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> <td></td> </tr> </table>		M	T	W	T	F
M	T	W	T	F
4. Share with teacher how you'll track work and progress during coaching cycle (Google Docs, Coaching Log...)	Notes:
5. Lastly, what questions does the teacher have about coaching? Are they feeling nervous about anything? Is there anything you can do to be more supportive during your work together?
